THE WOMAN QUESTION. Dr. Holland delivered a lecture in the Music Hall, Boston, a few evenings since, and was favorably received. He said : of all healt

As man's work was provision, and woman's work dispensation, there was no place where woman was so healthy and happy as at the head of house and home. She was not intended to be independent of man. The reduction of the number of marriages would be the saddest thing that could befall us. It needed a man and a woman to make a whole man .-There was no great humanity outside of mar-riage. And it was a curious fact that women loved their husbands best, when ruled by them with stweet sternness.

Woman contravened the policy of Heaven when she studied those professions or learned those trades which unfitted her for marriage. Therefore her wages must necessarily be smaller than man's, which he received for skilled labor, and out of which he had his family to support. Woman's labor should be only as a temporary means of support, and, therefore, not so well paid as man's. Dr. Holland did not think the increase of woman's wages would Royal. abate, the social evil. Vice would revise its tariff as often as virtue. The honest proprietor could not overbid the procurer. Woman's only safety lay in home and marriage. These were the only reliable safeguards of public country were they so tenderly revered as here. | style. Women could travel anywhere with no protection but her womanhood's sacred shield.

He did not once deny woman's right to vote. He simply questioned the necessity of it. The old argument that if a woman possesses the right to vote in a railway corporation, she should have it in the State, he dismissed by saying the two cases were not parallel. Government that protected the individual had a right to claim some of his money to protect and benefit him anew. If there was no such thing as marriage," woman might claim that man had no right to assume superiority and government; but by the law of nature she is bound to trust in him. Marriage modified the relations of men and women to the State.-Woman helps govern the State when she governs the family and educates the future statesman; for were the family destroyed, the State would sink to barbarism.

If the family life were perfect, it would be useless for women to vote-for they would simply double majorities; and it would be a sad thing indeed to see the family sympathics in politics which now exist destroyed. A husband and wife, walking arm in-arm in perfect harmony to the polls to cast votes intended to counteract each other would be a miracle.-When woman could show herself better qualified than man to vote, then she should have the vote, and not till then.

Let the whole world crystalize into families. Every woman who chose her husband exercised her right of suffrage. She elected her legal and moral representative for life, or during good behavior.

A PICTURE.-The New York Commercial,

"a republican" journal, paints a picture thus: When the resolutions (offered by that great calf from Ohio) of impeachment were presented, there was no pretext or shadow of justification for them. The impeachment committee, after prying and fishing for eight months, was compelled to admit that they had caught nothing, and consequently had nothing to report. But although when Congress adjourned the impeachment game was confessedly played out, it has been revived. The fever rages just now virulently. Thad. Stevens being ill, and Sen-ator Sumner taking care of "Crushed Women" in Kansas, Speaker Colfax is cogineering impeachment. Having no grounds or acts on which to base the movement, the Speaker is free to imagine as many provocations as the case requires. And as he is playing for the Presidency, with Chase and Wade distanced, Post, while enjoying the abuse of the President, gently admonishes the Speaker that de-declamation ! It is curious, and if not so expensive, it would be amusing, to see how many presidential candidates the war has made, and how sharp set they are, knowing, evidently, that this is their opportunity. "It was so easy, during the war, for second and third-rate men to get into high places, that we have a "commodity" of Candidates for President. A year ago half the U.S. Senate and a third of the House of Representatives expected translation to the White House. Outside of Congress, Chief Justice Chase, Horace Greeley and Wendall Phillips entered the lists. Each rider in this race had his color and rode his hobby. The Chief Justice planted his colors with his own hand at Charleston, and struck for "universal negro suffrage" in the South! Senator ter come quickly. Wade—a division of property, so that every black man shall have an improved farm.—

Thaddens Stevens—confiscation. Gen. But-ler—repudiation. Speaker Colfax—impeach ment. Mr. Greeley—"prohibitory liquor and lager laws." Senator Sumner—"an educational system that will raise a white population to intellectual and social equality with the black.
